AD-TALK

What would you think of a salesman who reported for duty one day, lay off for two, worked a half day, went off for a week and so on without any regularity? Surely you would not expect good service from such a man. And yet some merchants hold advertising, which is simply a "salesman," up to great results when it is allowed to "work" very irregularly. The fact that advertising costs money is proof of its value. Things without cost are usually worth only their price.

Nervous

"I was very nervous," writes Mrs. Mollie Mirse, of Carrsville, Ky., "had palpitation of the heart, and was irregular. On the advice of Mrs. Hattie Cain I took 2 bottles of Cardui and it did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I am 44 years old and the change has not left me, but I am lots better since taking Cardui."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Cardui is advertised and sold by its loving friends. The lady who advised Mrs. Mirse to take Cardui, had herself been cured of serious female trouble, by Cardui, so she knew what Cardui would do.

If Cardui cured Mrs. Cain and Mrs. Mirse, it surely will cure you too. Won't you try it? Please do.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

MISFORTUNES may be tolerated when we are comfortable and they are well bred enough to not force themselves upon our notice.

Probably the reason why there are so many cures for baldness in the world is because there are so many bald heads.

When a widow singles a man out from the throng it is dimes to dewberries that he does not remain single a great while.

When men's and women's clubs reach a somewhat higher degree of development homes will no longer be necessary.

It is hard to be tactful and act just as you feel like acting at the same time.

When we are busy the only person that we like to hear talk is a deaf mute.

A girl who can't talk baseball doesn't care much about a young man who does.

Sometimes a man is popular because he has so many enemies.

Considering its universal application, it is remarkably singular that common sense isn't more fashionable.

It is hard to make an old timer understand that things are as they ought to be and that we aren't speeding to the bowwows.

Pathetic.

Once more the crops that grow out west. The boards of trade are killing And over their demise, so sad, A lot of tears are spilling.

It seems the wheat has got the rust. The corn's stung by the weather, And it is very truly quite Distressing altogether.

Ah, well, they are accustomed to This awful early slaughter Of being murdered in their youth By wind and hail and water.

The speculators have a way Of furnishing disaster And piling on calamities That follow fast and faster.

This scare is furnished every year Till some begin to doubt it. For later on they find the crops Don't know a thing about it.

Suspicious.

"You seem to have a lot of money." "Do I?" "Yes." "That's all right." "But I'd like to know one thing." "Spell away." "Where'd you get it?" "Say, do you take me for a grafter?"

Startling News.

"How did you get through the census ordeal, Miss Backnumber?" "Oh, very nicely." "Did you tell the man how old you were?" "I certainly did." "Did he fall dead with surprise or was he polite about it?"

He Guessed It.

"Mr. Speaker," said the insurgent congressman. "For what purpose do you arise?" asked the speaker. "If I may judge the future by the past, for the purpose of sitting down again."

Naturally.

"What kind of men do you like the best?" "What kind?" "Yes." "Oh, just any kind that the other girls happen to be crazy about!"

Her Reason.

"He doesn't like the girls." "Billy?" "Yes." "I wonder why?" "He says they are so disgustingly fond of the other fellows."

Elevated.

"Are prices as high as ever?" "Higher!" "Higher?" "Yes; we have to go to the expense of owning an aeroplane in order to reach them now."

Felt For Bill.

"Bill's married." "Is that so?" "He is." "Let's send him a letter of sympathy."

Strong Enough.

"You say we ought to use some disinfectant after the measles?" "Yes." "Wouldn't my husband's breath do?"

Had a Friend.

"You ought to study French." "What for?" "To read the bill of fare." "My money talks all languages."

Too Gentle.

"Will this horse shy at autos?" "No." "He won't do. I wanted him for my mother-in-law."

Wheat Does Not Grow Wild.

The existence of names for wheat in the most ancient languages confirms the evidence of its great antiquity and of its cultivation in the more temperate parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. From the evidence adduced by botanists of high standing it seems highly improbable that wheat has ever been found growing persistently in a wild state, although it has often been asserted by poets, travelers and historians. In the "Odyssey," for example, we are told that wheat formerly grew in Sicily without the aid of man. Diodorus repeats the tradition that Osiris found wheat and barley growing promiscuously in Palestine, but neither this nor other reputed discoveries of wheat growing wild seem at all credible, seeing that it does not appear to be endowed with the power of persistency except under continued culture.
